Theatrical Production of Committing

Committing is the record of an open, honest and artistic expression of a very serious issue in the world today, presented by girls, some from a disadvantaged background, who have all come together in the safe and supportive environment of the Stardale program which is teaching them skills and providing them with experiences to prepare them for a hopeful and satisfying future.

Our girls have worked with theatre artist Geneviève Paré and playwright Eugene Stickland for the purpose of presenting a theatrical performance expressing thoughts and images around the very difficult and sensitive issue of youth suicide. This method of communication comes from the world of performance creation to ensure that the thoughts and feelings expressed come from the girls themselves.
